Woman's Hand.
There is scarcely in the whole scope of our enjoyment—it is a bold, bold assertion, but oh, how true!—a sensation more delightful than that arising from the warm touch of a woman's hand. Its very delicacy and weakness, as it glides into a strong and manly grasp, is a fit emblem of the just confidence the heart is so desirous to bestow upon its destined protector. And while the nerves thrill over the soft fingers and the electricity of passion is firing every vein—whilst a spirit richer and more refined than thought itself, flutters in the bosom—how the heart seems striving to expand itself into that unutterable ecstasy of being, so seldom felt—so impossible to be described. Reader, invoke, we pray thee, the aid of memory, and let her recall, in moonlight fitfulness, the scenes of thy courtship; the April mornings of hope and fear; of love, joy and passion. Let those visions of bliss again rise in shadowy review, like the springing fresh of a rainbow fountain—thou wilt own that whether amid the luxuries of art, screened by a friendly shade from the two strict scrutiny of the brilliant chandelier, or in the solitude of nature's untimed magnificence—if thou couldst but win the confidence of her thou lovest, so seemingly unconscious it had escaped her maidenly keeping she would trust her timid hand in thine, thy thoughts were flooded with delight—thy very bosom glowed with a generous rapture. Oh! how you then swore to thy heart of hearts (a more holy, more pure than that of the altar) to protect, to comfort her—to minister to her joys, to be her guard, her guide, her all in all! If thou didst not, thou wast no lover. Perchance with the soft reminiscence of stolen glances (the first of unpledged love), timid speeches and ardent vows, comes the withering thought of faith broken, looks estranged and vows forgotten—the cold countenance, the haughty answer, the disdainful smile. Alas! memory is too faithful a witness; and when called to bear testimony to the dearest pleasures of "Lang Syne," dare even there be cross-examined.—Noah's Sunday Times.

EFFECTS OF TEA.—If you drop a few drops of strong tea upon a piece of iron, a knife blade for instance, the tannate of iron is formed, which is black. If you mix it with iron filings or pulverized iron, you can make a fair ink. If you mix it with the blood the tannate of iron. Take human skin and let it soak for a time in strong tea and it will become leather. Now, when we remember that the liquids which enter the stomach are rapidly absorbed by the veins of the stomach, and enter into the circulation and are thrown out of the system to the skin, respiration and kidneys, it is probable that a drink as common as tea, and so abundantly used, will have some effect. Can it be possible that tannin, introduced with so much liquid producing perspiration, will have no effect upon the skin? Look at the tea drinkers of Russia, the Chinese and the old women of America, who have so long continued the habit of drinking tea. Are they not dark colored and leather skinned? When young they were fair complexioned.

SLEEP AS A MEDICINE.—A physician says that the cry for rest has always been louder than the cry for food. Not that it is more important, but it is often harder to obtain. The best rest comes from sound sleep. Of two men or women, otherwise equal, the one who sleeps the best will be the most healthy and efficient. Sleep will do much to cure irritability of temper, peevishness and uneasiness. It will restore vigor to an over-worked brain. It will build up and make strong a weak body. It will cure a headache. It will cure a broken spirit. It will cure sorrow. Indeed, we make a long list of nervous and other maladies that sleep will cure. The cure of sleeplessness requires a clean, good bed, sufficient exercise to promote weariness, pleasant occupation, good air, and not too warm a room; a clear conscience and avoidance of stimulants and narcotics. For those who are overworked, haggard, nervous, who pass sleepless nights, we commend the adoption of good habits as will secure sleep; otherwise life will be short, and what there is of it sadly imperfect.

There is published in Berlin the Journal of Cooks and Housemaids, in which housekeepers who look up their butter and sugar and inflict other indignities upon their servants, are held up to public obloquy by name. A large number of the subscribers of the paper have bound themselves not to enter the service of any woman who has been thus advertised three times within the year.

The London Milk Journal says that a pint of milk heated a little, but not boiled, taken every four hours, will check the most violent diarrhoea, stomach-ache, incipient cholera and dysentery. It is a cheap and agreeable sort of medicine, and will not be likely to kill if it does not cure.

The HOME MISSIONARY FIELD.—A tract distributor, says the Brooklyn Argus, followed by a small, inoffensive looking dog, amble up the steps of a private residence in Clinton street yesterday afternoon, and rang the front door bell. A dark-visaged female responded, and the instant she saw the dog, asked nervously: "Whose dog is that, sir?" "Mine, madam," said the meek and lowly disseminator of evangelical truth. "Well, I ought to have known it," she added, sharply, "it looks so much like you." And she slammed the door in his face. The Home Missionary field is full of such inducements to Christian labor.

The best society in Fiji never eat a boiled missionary in a month without an "a" in its name.

Eating Horse in Berlin.
A HORSE SLAUGHTER-HOUSE—HOW THE DEAD HORSES ARE UTILIZED.

In the Grietswalderstrasse, not far from the new Kingsgate, appears above the high fence a big sign with the inscription: "Central Horse Slaughter-House." Two well executed horses' heads in wood, painted brown, are placed at the sides of the sign, as who should neigh "Step within, honored, yet much tortured equines. Leave behind you all fear of the whips of mankind." A massive portal leads within to a large, roughly-paved court, on the left side of which, in a separate building, is the office of the veterinary surgeon; and on the right the dwelling of the proprietor of the slaughter-house.

Every horse which is to be slaughtered in Berlin must be brought here alive. The animal is first examined by the veterinarian, and only upon his expressed judgment can it be killed. To-day from the beams above, are suspended four slaughtered horses, which have only been disemboweled. None of them could have boasted of fatness; but they now seem to rejoice among themselves that they have at last run away from civilized mankind. But there are at present sixteen horse butchers in Berlin, who at this time of the year are pretty busy, for as agricultural labors are nearly ended, the unhappy horses are got rid of at cheap rates. And how many horses are disposed of here? Last year they killed over 3,600. This year the number will be greater. They now slaughter sixteen a day on an average, but frequently as many as twenty-five.

And what is the value of a dead horse? On an average from twenty to thirty thalers. The skin fetches from eight to ten dollars. The bones are the perquisites of the proprietor; and for them he receives from glue manufacturers and bone burners a remunerative little sum. The larger viscera, such as the liver, heart and mitr, are sold as food for hogs. The small intestines, after being cleaned and salted, are sent to sea-ports, where they are utilized as envelopes for all those different kinds of preserved meats used on board ships. The blood is emptied into large troughs, where the albumen is separated from it and sent to Prague. In that city a large albumen factory has for years taken this material on contract.

Finally, the flesh—but that goes to the horse-butchers; and we may readily believe that 4,600 horses become food. "The dogs get the most of it," said our conductor, and then he pointed out a large, clear liver hanging to a post, and remarked that it tasted very much like pig's liver. "But what the hounds do not get," he added, while he seemed to invoke the flavor of horse beefsteaks, "only poor people eat. Restaurants and such—Heaven preserve us!"—and he became quite serious, did our conductor.

Yet we could not help wondering at our own inconsistency. These fine pieces of meat were regarded with aversion, while at our feet a dozen ducks were smacking their bills in the gutters, and probably the birds would soon appear before us as savory roasts. There in the stable stood a fat pony, healthy and rotund. Was he also to be slaughtered? Certainly. He had a bad hoof, the curing of which would cost too much in food and time. And there next to him stood—an ass! happiness and impudence equally blended in his countenance. What was he doing here? He had been railed away at a Swiss garden. Perhaps a weaver had won him, and finding no room for the little animal under his loom had sold him to the slaughterers. "And, excellent conductor?" we enquired, diffidently. "What will be done with the ass's flesh?" "Yes—what is to be said—for restaurants and the like it is not—but, heaven preserve us—the flesh of the ass is—yes, it is very often used for sausages."

REMAINS OF TECUMSEH.—Professor Daniel Wilson has reported to the Ontario Government that the bones found at Moraviantown were not those of Tecumseh. He gives several reasons for the decision he has come to, the principal being that the great Shawnee chief's "skeleton" as submitted for examination contains the bones of two men; a woman, a child of about seven, a deer and a dog! An Indian writes to the local press a long letter in which he says: "When Tecumseh fell three of his Shawnee warriors were by his side, and he told them that he was done, then expired, and they carried him away immediately further back in the woods from where they were fighting, and hid his body until next day. When the enemy had passed on those three Shawnees went back and buried him quite a distance from the battle ground, where there was no other Indian present. One of those Shawnees died lately, and I often heard him talk of Tecumseh, but he would never tell where he was buried and often refused money. Those Shawnees made a vow that they never would tell, and they kept their promise like men. The reason of this secret was because the Americans tried hard afterward to find the body, and even offered money for it, so as to take it with them as a trophy of their victory, but failed, and I am glad of it, and I am sure it never shall be found."

ADVERTISEMENTS: Missing from Killarney, Lane O'Fogarty. She had in her arms two babies and a Guernsey cow, all black, with red hair, and tortoise-shell comb behind her ears, and large black spots all down her back, which squints awfully.

"I hear that your husband has lost his hearing," whispered one lady to another. "Yes," was the muffled reply; "but don't whisper so loud; he doesn't like to hear the subject referred to."

The old Court House in Rappahannock, Va., in which John Waller, Robert Ware, John Shackelford and James Greenwood were in 1774 arraigned for preaching the Gospel contrary to the law of the colony, is to be converted into a school.

"JOHN," said a New York country grocer to his man, "have you watered the rum?" "Yes, sir." "Dampened the tobacco?" "Yes, sir." "Sanded the sugar?" "Yes, sir." "Then you may come in to prayers."

Fashions.
LATEST CONCETS AND NOVELTIES OF THE MODISTE AND MILLINER.

For more dressy occasions are rich-looking bonnets of the pale greenish cream shade called tillend, or linden color, or else the gay cardinal or caroubier red velvet.

Many of the neat, compactly-shaped bonnets that suit simple tastes are shown, but a great number have large bunches of nodding feathers, hanging sprays of flowers and flowing ribbons.

There are turban bonnets that are really nothing but crowns worn far back on the head, with hanging strings. Some of these have Mother Goose crowns, while others are broader and lower, with many feathers upon them.

The trimming surrounds the crown, and is the only positive rule, as in some bonnets, it is massive on top, in some on the left side, while others have their greater abundance down the middle of the crown, with merely a band around it.

Marie Stuart pointed fronts, with ample sides, are among the new shapes for dressy bonnets to be worn by ladies who like broad bonnets, as opposed to the present narrow shapes. The point is not always directly in the middle of the forehead, but it is sometimes a trifle to the left.

Velvet is most used for the bonnet proper; bias silks are twisted with velvet for trimmings, but soft tulle or basket-woven ribbons, or these with double-face satin on one side and gros grain on the other, are preferred for twisting around the crown and for the hanging streamers.

Embroidery on dresses is the present fancy of rich women in Europe, and is being used here on full dress toilettes and elegant costumes for the street. The tablier breadth is usually covered with needle-work, and there are many yards of wrought bands for borders and as headings for flounces.

A three-cornered neckerchief is now worn outside of Foul wraps instead of the long scarf of lace. They are made of white lawn edged with lace—either Maltese, Valenciennes or Mechlin—and are so shaped that they fit into the shoulders with a short point behind, and the long ends are placed straight down in front, almost to the belt, in lieu of a jabot or a fichu.

A charming novelty is a tiny flat bow of linen edged with lace, and provided with a button-hole in the middle, which is to fasten it to the collar button of gold or pearl which ladies now fasten their collars with. This is the nearest ornament possible for ladies who appreciate the fine linen collars which are worn on all occasions except those where full dress is required.

The stylish, simply trimmed bonnets have bunches of two or three broad upright loops of silk or ribbon on the left side, with two short ends fringed out, while on the right side is an erect ostrich plume put in low down, and posed so that the end will curl up over the top to meet the loops from the other side. The back part of the crown is left plain in a severe-looking fashion that is now in favor, or else it may have two long streamers of ribbon hanging thence.

The dark colored velvet and felt bonnets are usually of one color, with the merest suggestion of some light contrasting shade, or of the inevitable cardinal, by way of relief. Thus myrtle green velvet bonnets have ostrich feathers that are shaded from myrtle to linden green, while others have cream-colored azaleas for contrast with the dark green. Seal brown velvet with cream-colored cock's plumes is much liked. Plum-colored velvet is brightened by linden plumes or by flaming cardinal. Velvet is the material most used, but felt bonnets, and especially round hats, will not be abandoned.—Harper's Bazar.

ANOTHER REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM.—Medical Brief reports that Dr. MacLagan has used salicine in rheumatism. He employed it in eight cases, and arrives at the following conclusions:

1. We have in salicine a valuable remedy in the treatment of acute rheumatism.
2. The more acute the case, the more marked the benefit produced.
3. In acute cases, its beneficial action is generally apparent within twenty-four hours, always within forty-eight hours, of its administration in sufficient doses.
4. Given thus at the commencement of the attack, it seems sometimes to arrest the course of the malady as effectively as quinine cures an ague, or ipecacuanha a dysentery.
5. The relief of pain is always one of the earliest effects produced.
6. In acute cases, relief of pain and a fall of temperature generally occur simultaneously.
7. In sub-acute cases the pain is sometimes decidedly relieved before the temperature begins to fall; this is especially the case when, as is frequently observed in those of a nervous temperament, the pain is proportionately greater than the abnormal rise of temperature.
8. In chronic rheumatism salicine sometimes does good where other remedies fail; but it also sometimes fails where others do good.

The dose employed was from ten to thirty grains every two, three or four hours, according to the severity of the case. Fifteen grains every three hours Mr. Pemberton conceives to be a medium dose for an acute case.

Local Department.

TWO dollars per month are our charges per square—10 lines—for local star notices. No deviation from this rule.

SPECIAL MEETING.—At the Truck House on Monday night last, the firemen of Livermore Hook and Ladder Company held a special meeting to arrange matters pertaining to the coming ball on Thanksgiving night.

OUR DETERMINATION.—The People's judgment in regard to choosing certain men to fill public offices inside this corporation is unhappily being demonstrated to have been sadly mistaken.

NOVEL EXAMINATION.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Ezra S. Carr, and County Supt. W. F. B. Lynch will scarcely be prepared for the fact that a new code of examination for teachers has been prepared by two members of the Board of School Trustees here at Livermore.

THE BALL.—The Thanksgiving night ball of the Livermore Hook and Ladder Company, promises to be very complete in its appointments. The Livermore String Band of six pieces will be well up for the occasion.

ROADS.—Our Alameda Valley neighbors are contemplating a railroad which will pass along the lower—or bay—side of the Valley from Oakland to Dumberton Landing.

PLOUGHING.—Very little work in this line has been done in this valley as yet. Only in the softer adobe lands has work commenced in earnest.

BALL.—Don't forget to notice the fine postcard bills of the Hook and Ladder Company. The Committee have done well in their advertising line, and we trust the attendance will be large.

THE TIE SEVERED.—DeWitt, the young man who has distinguished himself by selling sewing machines a good deal in this vicinity, and who is at this time pining in a dungeon, for brutal assault upon his wife, was Monday cut off by the Judge of the Third District Court at Oakland from further indulgence or hope in carrying on his game of wife garroting in the future.

HOUSES.—Rambling about the other day in search of a delinquent we noticed not less than twenty new houses erected and in course of building. This does not look much as if Livermore was degenerating—notwithstanding the incorporation. We understand that several more residences are in contemplation.

BED-ROCK PRICES.—The well reputed firm of Goldman & Arendt, at Pleasanton, has largely increased their stock of goods recently with a determination to keep ahead of everything in the line of competition.

HAPPINESS.—Seldom does a community have in its midst a more complete and thorough workman, in his line of business, than Mr. James O'Brien, near the corner of J and First Streets. Mr. O'Brien's reputation needs no con-

ELECTION PRECINCT BOUNDARIES, ETC.

Supervisor Alviso's Action Vindicated.

OAKLAND, Nov. 14, 1876. ED. ENTERPRISE.—I have been informed by Supervisor Alviso that some of his constituents have censured him regarding his appointments of election officers and in changing the boundaries of Altamont election precinct.

WILL POSITIVELY RETIRE.—During the week it has come to our knowledge that there are not less than nine saloon-keepers in town who will not renew their license at the present rate of forty dollars.

P. O. BUSINESS.—It seems that the item regarding the mails, in last week's ENTERPRISE, has done some service. Mr. Postmaster McLeod has written to the proper authority to ascertain the purpose of the C. P. R. Co.'s contract.

LEG BROKE.—On Monday last Master Thomas Kealy—a lad about 13 or 14 years of age, and son of John Kealy—while playing on the derrick near the old shop of John Aylward, on Lizzie street, had a piece of pipe fall upon his left leg, which broke the same just above the ankle.

MARKETS.—We call attention to the complete San Francisco Commercial reports which appear on the second column of the fourth page of the ENTERPRISE. It is our intention to make this column a feature of interest in the paper.

DECIDED.—The returns from Milpitas and Sunol indicate that in event of Mr. Hayes obtaining a majority of votes in the Electoral College, Mr. Hayes will be the successor of General Grant. FALSE, IF TRUE.

If it be true that the ENTERPRISE has recently disappointed some of our subscribers by its recent political editor, the fault lies with the latter rather than with the paper or its publishers. On the part of the subscribers, for the reason that they supposed and believed it to be a party paper and Republican at that. That its views of public men or men in search of public positions must of a necessity be governed by a private political spirit or prejudice, and that in short the ENTERPRISE could not possibly take part in supporting a good man for office if he claimed to belong to any other than the Republican party. Such a supposition has brought about misunderstanding and disappointment to those who fostered it. The ENTERPRISE, however, has not changed. It claims the right to oppose the men whose election bodes no good to the advancement and general welfare of the multitude, as much today as it did when it supported "Uncle Jim" for Senator.

Those who have denounced its course are to a man, Republicans, and they have not lacked promptors, unscrupulous enough to say in their ear that money had "made the mare go" so to speak. Such men are liars, and the evidence of their lying is found in their irresponsible statements which never have about them even a pretension of authority. A. A. Moore, of Oakland, who spoke at Exchange Hall, is an example of the class here defined. He further serves as an example of that other characteristic of the irresponsible talker, viz.: that he never makes the assertion where he believes the person affected is within hearing range. This class of men are essentially cowards, and it is doubtless one of the devil's methods of prolonging their existence on the earth. Fortunately clear-headed, thoughtful men, whether Republican or Democrat, are but little influenced by statements of this kind. Knowing that if a man assumes to know three-fourths of a contract of that kind, the amount paid, to whom paid, and for what, he should surely know by whom paid or the first part of the agreement. Unfortunately the bare assertion makes us no better off, and thus it is doubly vexing, in having the name without the game. Thanks to the better sense of our patrons the ENTERPRISE is flourishing beyond all precedent.

WELL MEANING BUT INCOMPETENT.

At the time Mr. Geo. E. Freeman, the furniture dealer and undertaker, took the oath of office as a School Trustee of this District, no person doubts but what he then believed he would faithfully discharge the duties of the office to the best of his ability. No person will be vile enough to suggest that he sought the position for pecuniary gain or for the purpose of venting his spleen upon any religious sect in this community. The office is of no value pecuniarily to any member there being no pay attached. The positions are honorary and should be filled by honorable men. It has been remarked that this Trustee has done certain carpenter work for the new school house or the fittings therein; and that in so doing he has violated the section of the School Law No. 1,873, which says: "No School Trustee must be interested in any contract made by the Board of which he is a member. From inquiries made by us we do not find any great importance need be attached to that assertion. Mr. Freeman did by order of the other two members of the Board perform some small job which it is asserted could not be done by anybody else here, this is all. It hardly amounts to a contract, as implied in the section quoted, though a nice sense of honor on the part of a Trustee should forbid him doing this much. The point wherein the gentleman has proved most incompetent, is in the manifestation of his partisan feeling in rejecting the application of Mrs. Mcintosh. It was as indecorous in the man as it was unconstitutional and unwarranted in the official.

In scanning the election returns published elsewhere, it will be observed that this Township is the only one in the county which polled a majority for Tilden and Carpenter at the late election. We do not arrogate to ourselves any special honor in the fact but attribute it rather to the superior judgment politically of the residents of this neighborhood over those of the other portions of Alameda. The people hereabouts have been certainly less influenced by corrupt electioneering devices than the residents of Oakland for instance and their vote is to be accepted therefore as an expression of more honest conclusions. We esteem it an honor nevertheless to have been upon the side of popular opinion in respect to the people of Murray Township.

Owing to the number of buildings in contemplation there is room here for a first-class, reliable contractor and builder.

Hosts OAKS.—Messrs. Ditcher & Heslop contractors completing the base cart within the coming week.

FROM POLITICS TO BUSINESS.

Our advice is that now the election is over and all the enthusiasm of party victory has been imbibed to satiety for every man to turn his attention to local circumstances, and domestic necessities. There is scarcely an individual around these parts of whom it could be said that his bread and butter depended upon the result of the election. We don't know of an instance excepting perhaps the heir elect to the Marshalship of Idaho, or the defeated Postmaster-General of Livermore. It is a consoling reflection to be entertained by us all, that irrespective of party principles, we all live, move, and have our existence by mutual understanding and sympathy. The farmer will fall back on his plow, and cogitate upon what kind of crop will pay him the best. The merchant looks to his stock and prepares for stock-taking, and closing up the year's business and the shop-keeper makes up his mind to mind his shop closer. The mechanic out of work, determines to get it, while his brother mechanic in work, resolves to keep it as long as it will keep him. The newspaper man is again on the rummage for subscriptions with a comorantish appetite. Things generally will assume their normal condition, and by next Thursday week, the Nation's heartfelt thanks will curl heavenwards in the goodly increase of boiled turkey well pleasing to the giver of every good and perfect gift, even the gift of a new President. In the meantime let the business affairs of life be uppermost in the minds and first in the pursuits of all. Let sober judgment supplant the intoxicating excitement of the past two weeks, and rancor and bad feeling engendered during the heat and turmoil of the contest "be nof as much as named among you." As citizens of one grand and noble government be united for the common good. He is less than a man that will try to perpetuate ill-blood against his fellow through political opinions or party zeal expressed at a time like the present. In the main, all have acted through conviction and done their duty, and though there were but two sides only one could win. If the best has been done by both, then the best may have won, and all's well that ends well. At all events let us change the subject and turn to business.

THE COUNTY AND THE CANALS.

The Oakland Tribune says that the Board of Supervisors added thirteen cents per $100 to the county tax rate of last year making up the present rate of 57 1/2 cents on the $100. To this is added the State levy of 7 3/4 cents and the total of $1.31 per $100 is shown to be the State and county tax rate for this year. Of the thirteen cents added by the Board, 7 1/2 cents is for canals around "our harbor," says the Tribune. Superficially this is only a small allowance for so gigantic an interest as the canal interest, yet it tells up a tolerably good sum on the $36,389,961 worth of property in this county. It is in the neighborhood of $27,000 which is quite an important item as viewed from a Livermore standpoint where the benefits of a good canal at Oakland are so unlikely to be enjoyed.

Our contemporary omits to explain the necessity there was for adding 13 cents to the tax rate to obtain 7 1/2 for Oakland's canal interests. No doubt it is all right and proper, but Supervisors and canals cannot in these degenerate days be too closely followed by the eye of the public press. If the Tribune's figures be correct, that $20,511.07 must be collected from the people of Alameda county, in taxes, then the valuation of property, or the rate of $1.31 must be increased otherwise there will be a deficiency of nearly forty-four thousands of dollars. Oakland could consistently afford to make this sum up by private subscription, and as a set off to the many thousands which have been subscribed for years past by her neighbors in the county to beautify her streets and increase her business. But will she do it?

CALIFORNIA AND THE CHINESE.

That body of United States Missionaries, Messrs. Morton & Co., will have no nay but that the presence of a large body of non-voters in any community is a source of great danger. The question is put to nearly every witness in the case, either by A. A. Sargent or O. P. Morton. The Chinese are in the fair way to obtain the benefits of the franchise before the next election if Mr. Tilden doesn't hurry up to the White House. Any intelligent and impartial reader of the proceedings before the so-called Investigating Committee of the Mongolian Evil must discern that the presumption is strongly in favor of naturalizing "John." To the ordinary mind, 50,000 Chinamen, each with a Republican ticket in hand, blockading the polls would be a much greater danger to the peace of a community than the same number without that privilege. The position California has taken politically in the results of the present campaign, merits all the misery that Morton & Co. can heap upon her, in encouraging Chinese Immigration by enfranchisement.

FARMERS in want of good and serviceable harness can find the same at J. O'Brien's.

FOREIGN TROUBLES.

The two months armistice between Servia and Turkey is flitting by without bringing any satisfactory pacific settlement. The European War is as imminent as ever. The conference of the Powers has not been held, and a good deal of talk about the integrity of the Ottoman Empire goes on. Russia is making ready for the conference by rubbing up her munitions of war and mobilizing six army corps. England is in a quandary being anxious no doubt to know where her allies may come from in the event of the Czar taking up Servia's lost cause. More lasting advantage would no doubt be gained to Servia through the instrumentality of a general conference, than will probably result from a series of battles between Russian and Turkish soldiers. By a conference Turkey would be compelled to concede an equitable proposal in behalf of Servia, while the result of a victory by Russia over Turkey would leave Servia solely at the merciful consideration of the former. The London Times intimates that the warlike attitude of Russia at the present time, could have been prevented had Austria and Great Britain known their interests a year ago and attended to what was then an easy matter. Russia evidently wants to get even on England and the Crimean difficulty and sooner or later it will be necessary that she shall try her strength.

HAYES' SOUTHERN STATES.

Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida have not yet been allowed by Grant & Co. to hand in their ultimatum to the Presidential question. It is now ten days since the ballots of the people of those States have been cast at the different polling places but we are told that the means of communication with certain counties in each of these States, are so uncertain and inadequate as to fully account for the delay. We do not think it a reasonable statement that an election precinct in any county of any State in the Union is so remote as to require ten or even five days time to hear from it. We would sooner believe that the delay is the work of the Administration at Washington which in conjunction with the Republican Governors of the three States and the U. S. troops are determined to carry the day for Hayes.

It is quite a new doctrine as well as a new feature in the history of this Republic, since the fermentation of the war, that a chief of the Republican party claims the Presidential chair by virtue of his popularity in the South. The hardihood of Mr. Hayes in claiming these States as his own is not less consummate nor less preposterous than were Mr. Tilden to have asserted his success as depending upon carrying the States of Massachusetts, Vermont and Maine. And if it is possible for the Administration to coerce the vote of three States in favor of its candidate and Southern States at that, then there is nothing improbable in believing it competent to overawe and capture every State in the Union.

OPEN AND SHUT.

It is one of the most important duties of the journalist to write strongly upon, and expose thoroughly, every attempt on the part of the official to violate the laws, and disgrace the public institutions of the country. It is also expected that he shall sift to the bottom or as near as he can get it, the complaints which are so commonly made by the public against the public servants, and vindicate the characters of them against whom such complaints are found to have been maliciously or wrongfully made. But where the contrary is the case, where the officer has flagrantly abused the trust reposed in his keeping by the people, then assuredly will the fearless and uncontaminated journal see justice done, and the honor and purity of the public offices maintained to the highest degree practicable. If these premises then be correct, the ENTERPRISE, in the capacity of an outspoken denunciator of all abuses of power or of authority by certain persons in this limited community, will in every instance make its subscribers aware of the tricks one or two of the local authorities in school matters undertake to play.

It is wonderfully strange to the uninitiated to comprehend the cause why the ENTERPRISE has not passed in its checks, and its proprietors hung from the yard-arm. Well, if such wishes as come from parties who are almost incapable of writing their own name; men who cannot buy a dog without the assistance of a friend and who think George Washington never saw a cherry tree are to predominate, then we should die, dry up and blow away, so as to save the price of a common pine box charged to the county at sixty to seventy per cent. above market price. But it is quite pleasing to us to know that such diplomatic manipulators have no weight with people of average common sense, and those who follow in their footsteps are so far beneath the recognition of the intelligent mind that we really feel ashamed of ourselves for even alluding to them. There are always one or two persons in burghs like this who think the wheels of progress cannot revolve without some of their (?) grease.

NATIONAL BANKRUPTCY.

It will scarcely be forgotten how an attempt was made just before the 7th of November to make votes for Hayes and lose them for Tilden, by scaring the people with telegrams from Europe that the National credit was in jeopardy in the event of Tilden's election. How the U. S. bonds had depreciated in value everywhere and capitalists were beginning to fight shy of American securities, etc., etc. What a great blow was made by all the Republican papers in this and the other States. Compare this with the tone of the leading commercial papers in England after the reception there of the news that Samuel J. Tilden was elected. On the 8th all the New York papers announced the election of Tilden. It was then accepted as a forgone conclusion and cabled to Europe. Is there anything to show that it was received abroad with bad odor? Far from it. Compliments on the result came back the following day and were published in the editorials of the best financial journals of Europe. Tilden's election to the Presidency was esteemed an advantage to the Republic. Upon reviewing such facts as these it is not appalling to contemplate the degradation to which the Administration has fallen, when it becomes necessary to have recourse to such unprincipled schemes and such audacious impostures as the National credit humbug.
